

Story Text: Barnaby's Big Jump

Barnaby was a small rabbit with very big ears. He was the bravest rabbit in the Green Meadow. He could jump over tall logs. He could run through dark tunnels. Barnaby loved to show his friends how brave he was.

One sunny morning, Barnaby went to the Great Garden. Mayor Mole lived there. Mayor Mole had a beautiful glass flower. It was bright blue. It sparkled in the golden sun. Everyone in the meadow loved the flower.

Barnaby wanted to do his biggest jump yet. He wanted to jump right over the glass flower.

"Watch this!" Barnaby shouted to a yellow butterfly.

Barnaby took a deep breath. He wiggled his nose. He leaped high into the air. But Barnaby's fluffy tail hit the flower.

Tinkle, tinkle, crash!

The blue glass flower broke into three pieces. Barnaby's heart beat very fast. He looked around. No one was watching. He felt a cold shiver in his tummy.

Decision Point 1:

* Option A: Hide the broken pieces in the tall grass and run away.

* Option B: Stay by the flower and wait for Mayor Mole to come out.

(If Option A is chosen): Barnaby pushed the pieces into the grass. He ran to the woods. But he did not feel brave. He felt heavy. He could not enjoy the sunshine. He saw Mayor Mole looking for his flower. Mayor Mole looked very sad. Barnaby knew he had to go back.

(If Option B is chosen): Barnaby sat by the broken flower. His paws were shaking. He wanted to run. But he stayed still. Soon, Mayor Mole came out of his house. He saw the broken pieces.

"Oh no!" Mayor Mole cried. "My favorite flower is broken."

Mayor Mole looked at Barnaby. "Do you know what happened, Barnaby?"

Barnaby felt a big lump in his throat. He was scared Mayor Mole would be angry.

Decision Point 2:

* Option A: Tell the truth. Say he broke it by accident.

* Option B: Say a big gust of wind knocked it over.

(If Option A is chosen): Barnaby took a deep breath. "I am sorry, Mayor Mole," Barnaby said. "I was jumping. I hit it by accident."

Mayor Mole looked at the pieces. Then he looked at Barnaby. He gave a small, kind smile.

"Thank you for telling me," Mayor Mole said. "It takes a lot of courage to be honest. You are a very brave rabbit."

(If Option B is chosen): Barnaby said, "A big wind blew it over!"

Mayor Mole looked at the still trees. There was no wind. Barnaby felt even worse. His tummy hurt. He looked at Mayor Mole's sad face.

"Wait," Barnaby said quickly. "That was a lie. I broke it. I am sorry."

Mayor Mole patted Barnaby's shoulder. "I am glad you told the truth. Honesty is better than a story."

Barnaby helped Mayor Mole glue the flower back together. It had a few tiny lines now. But Barnaby thought it looked even better. He learned that being brave is not just about jumping. Being brave means telling the truth. Barnaby felt light and happy again. He hopped home with a wiggly, honest nose.

Pixar-Style Illustration Prompts

1. The Incident: A wide-angle shot of a fluffy, cinematic-style rabbit with large expressive eyes mid-air. He is jumping over a glowing, translucent blue glass flower. The background is a vibrant, sun-drenched garden with soft-focus clover. High-detail fur textures and "subsurface scattering" on the glass.
2. The Guilt: A close-up of Barnaby the rabbit looking down at broken blue glass shards. His ears are slightly drooped. The lighting is dappled sunlight through leaves, creating a moody but soft atmosphere. His expression shows a mix of worry and reflection.
3. The Resolution: A heartwarming scene of a small mole in a tiny waistcoat and a rabbit sitting together on moss. They are looking at a repaired glass flower. The lighting is warm and golden (golden hour). The characters have soft, touchable textures and friendly, smiling faces.

Narration Script

(Soft, inviting voice)

"Barnaby was a small rabbit with very big ears. He was the bravest rabbit in the Green Meadow. One day, Barnaby made a mistake. He accidentally broke Mayor Mole's favorite glass flower. [Pause] Barnaby felt scared. No one saw him do it.

Now, you must help Barnaby decide. Should he hide the pieces and run away? Or should he stay and wait for Mayor Mole? [Long pause for interaction]

Barnaby realized that his tummy felt heavy when he wasn't honest. When Mayor Mole asked what happened, Barnaby had another choice. Should he tell the truth? Or should he blame the wind? [Long pause for interaction]

Barnaby took a deep breath and told the truth. Mayor Mole wasn't angry. He told Barnaby that telling the truth is the bravest thing anyone can do. Barnaby's heavy feeling went away. He learned that honesty makes your heart feel light."

Background Music Description

* Tone: Whimsical, gentle, and acoustic.

* Instruments: A light acoustic guitar melody paired with a soft woodwind (like a flute or oboe) for Barnaby's movements.

* Mood Shift: The music should be bright and bouncy at the start. When the flower breaks, the music should transition to a slower, slightly lower-pitched "pizzicato" (plucked) string sound to represent Barnaby's nervousness. The ending should return to a warm, swelling orchestral harmony that feels rewarding and peaceful.
